CHAPERON

"WHAT'S got you star-gazing, dream girl," queried Ted Dawson, as he fell in beside Candy O'Connor. Candy was just leaving the high school on her way home at the end of the afternoon session. She had been moving along in her own little world and the sudden presence of her almost-ready boyfriend, threw her out of her reverie. "Oh, hello, Ted," she sighed, "I was just thinking about chaperons."

"A diabolical pastime, if I've ever heard of one," laughed Ted. "Oh, I get it, you're mulling over the Junior Prom tomorrow night. But why the chaperon angle? I should think it would be the new dress, a hot snafu, and me, your favorite fella!"

"You're pretty sure of yourself," Candy countered placidly. "Actually, I was thinking of our terrific new economics teacher, Mr. Kramer. He's going to chaperon the prom, you know." "So?" replied Ted, taking the bait. "It won't be the first time we've had a good guy overseeing activities. I'm pretty fed on Kid Kramer myself. Just because he made a name for himself in college, he thinks he's a big shot here as a teacher."

Candy tossed her head. "It isn't every day we can have a star athlete on our faculty, and such an absolutely handsome one, too."

And it was true. Mitchell "Kid" Kramer had taken Hartwick High School by storm when he accepted a teaching position. His presence on the campus had turned the head of every girl student. Even the women teachers note suddenly in a flurry of new hair styles and a noticeable change of manner. And Cornelia Clyde, Candy's would-be rival in all departments, had hoped that she intended to make such an impression on Mr. Kramer that he'd be begging her to date the minute she graduated from Hartwick High School. The only thing that stopped her from dating him before graduation, she said, was the strict school rule that teachers and students would not have dates.

Ted Dawson was well aware of Candy's interest and along with the other boys in school, was launched on a campaign to make Mitchell Kramer look as silly as possible in the eyes of all the girls. Until now, they had had little success however, because the handsome economics teacher maintained strict discipline in his classroom and as assistant coach of the school football team, he talked nothing but good coach football and the boys had yet to find a weak spot.

The morning of the prom, Ted shuddered to a stop in his jalopy just as Candy came down the walk on her way in school. "Hop in, sugar foot," he chirped, "All set for the big drag tonight?"

"Ted, don't you think it's simply a common custom to ask the chaperon to dance? Especially when that chaperon's been sitting all evening just watching all of us have a wonderful gay time?"

Ted replied, red in the face, "For chux sakes, Candy, are you still dazing over Kramer? Personally, I think the guy's a pain."

"I really don't care what you think," said Candy smoothly. "I'm serving notice right now that I'm going to dance with Mr. Kramer. Cornelia Clyde's bragging that she'll have the first and last dance with him and I'm not going to let her get ahead of me."

"Well, if all the " started Ted, as he jammed to a stop in front of the school. "Okay, queen bee, we're here! And I hope you can save a few dances for me tonight, since I'm gonna be your escort. You and that Cornelia Clyde, phooey!"

That afternoon, Ted was leaving the athletic field after football set-back. As usual, the old jalop was sputtering and coughing to a start, but even so, it was doing a bit better than the cream colored runaround that Mitchell Kramer was trying to start. Finally he gave up and hailed Ted, just as that young man was gleefully picturing the handsome instructor stuck with his car for the next twenty-four hours. Ted grudgingly responded with an offer to drive Mr. Kramer to town and they jolted off a few moments later.

Ted called for Candy on the bottom that night, and whistled appreciatively as she swept down the stairs in a cloud of pink tulle. "Wowie! You'll knock 'em all dead, princess, chaperons included." "I'm glad you're not being nasty about Mr. Kramer, Ted," rined Candy. "After all, we girls are just interested in seeing that he isn't bored." "Sure thing," replied Ted comfortably. "But you've got your work cut out for you." And he carefully placed her wrap over her shoulders.

Candy looked at Ted speculatively as they sped along to the dance. "I'm not sure I like your attitude after all, Ted Dawson. You act pretty clippier about the whole thing." "Tsk, Candy, such pretension," chided Ted. Just then, Cornelia Clyde brushed by Candy, trailing on the hem of her gown. "Ope, Candy," she drawled, "Sorry, but I'm in a hurry for that first dance you know." Candy gulped a fast reply, "Think nothing of it, Cornie. I just don't want to get killed in the rush."

"I simply hate that girl," muttered Candy. "She's going to monopolize Mr. Kramer and none of us will have a chance at him." Ted, laughing, led her up the steps. "Ordinarily I'd lace up on a comment like that, angel face, but my crystal ball tells me all your feintings are going to have a change of heart."

"Oh, nonsense!" replied Candy haughtily, as they entered the gala decorated gym. "You don't know what you're talking about." "Well then let's just trot over so we can be on hand when Cornelia nails Kid Kramer for that first dance," laughed Ted.

Mr. Kramer was looking anxiously towards the side door when Ted and Candy moved in and quietly started to dance nearby. Cornelia swooped in, smiling broadly. Mr. Kramer seemed to look right past her. By this time, Candy had practically stopped dancing and Ted was hard put to conceal his chuckles. "Oh, do be quiet, Ted, I want to hear what Cornelia says," whispered Candy. "Yeah, and I want to hear Mr. Kramer's reply," he returned.

"Oh, Mr. Kramer," cooed Cornelia, oozing confidence. "Will you dance this first dance with your brightest pupil?" Mitchell Kramer looked startled. "Why, thank you, Cornelia. But as a matter of fact you didn't do too well on that exam today. And I'm afraid I'll have to decline your kind invitation. I always dance the first dance with my wife. Oh, here she comes now." All eyes turned in the direction Kid Kramer was looking, to see a tall, stately blonde come smilingly toward him. Cornelia just stood still, wide-eyed and stunned. An appreciative murmur spread through the gym and Candy recovered quickly to burst into laughter as she danced away with a smug looking Ted. "Well, wise one," she quipped, "you can put away that crystal ball now, I'm not going to worry about chaperons anymore."

I Will Train You at Home in Spare Time to be a RADIO-TELEVISION Technician

TELEVISION

Making Jobs, Prosperity

25 million homes have Television sets now. Thousands more sold every week. Trained men needed to make, install, service TV sets. About 200 television stations on the air. Hundreds more being built. Good job opportunities here for qualified technicians, operators, etc.

J. E. SMITH, President
National Radio Institute
Washington, D. C.
Our 40th Year

America's Fast Growing Industry Offers You Good Pay, Success

Training NRI's opportunity is the PERFECT COMBINATION for job security, advancement. When times are good, the trained man makes the BETTER PAY, gets PROMOTED. When jobs are scarce, the trained man enjoys GREATER SECURITY. NRI training can help assure you and your family more of the better things of life. Radio is bigger than ever with over 3,000 broadcasting stations and more than 115 MILLION sets in use, and Television is moving ahead fast.

N.R.I. Training Leads to Good Jobs Like These

I TRAINED THESE MEN

"I have progressed very rapidly. My present position is Studio Supervisor with KEND Television, Wichita."—Elmer Frowaldt, 3029 Saulton, Wichita, Kans.

"Fix sets part time in my shop. Made about $500 first three months of the year. Could hear more but this is about all I can handle."—Frank Doney, Laramie, Wyo.

"I've come a long way in Radio and Television since graduating. Have my own business on Main Street."—Joe Travers, Ashbury Park, New Jersey.

"I didn't know a thing about Radio. Now have a good job as Studio Engineer at KMLL."—Bill Delpell, Central City, Nebraska.

BROADCASTING: Chief Technician, Chief Operator, Power Monitor, Recording Operator, Remote Control Operator. SERVICING: Home and Auto Radios, Television Receivers, FM Radios, P.A. Systems. IN RADIO PLANTS: Design Assistant, Technician, Tester, Serviceman, Service Manager. SHIP AND HARBOR RADIO: Chief Operator, Radio-Telephone Operator. Start Soon to Make $10, $15 a Week Extra Fixing Sets

My training is practical, complete. I started by 40 years of success training men at home. My well-illustrated lessons give you inside principles you need and my skillfully developed kits of parts "bring to life" things you learn from the lessons. I start sending you special booklets that show you how to fix sets the day you enroll. Multimeter you build with my parts helps you discover and correct set troubles. Helps you make money fixing neighbors' sets in spare time while training. Many make $10, $15 a week extra this way.
